Rose Hill Update

Spring has sprung; visitors have been arriving at the museum by the busloads; and school children from all over the central Maryland area have had their first experiences with the changes in the manor house. From playing table and board games in the “formal” parlor, viewing the dining room table all set for a hearty pancake breakfast, “doing laundry” in the kitchen; and playing in the upstairs playroom, visitors have experienced the changes that include air conditioning!!

New textile room on the second floor of the manor.

Christening gown of Thomas Jennings Johnson.

To view this original piece of history and discover where this baby fits into the family tree, be sure to visit one of the newly refurbished bed chambers on the manor's second floor.

Venture into the manor rooms to find a picture of a First Lady of the US who visited the home.
